

CHAMBERLAIN TELLS COMMONS ENGLAND IS IN IMMINENT DANGER OF WAR; ASKS EMERGENCY POWERS

England's Prime Minister Says Poland Has Always Been Ready
To Discuss Differences With Germany—Asks
Passage of Defense Bill by Tonight

(By Charles A. Smith, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Aug. 24—Before a House of Commons packed to capacity, Prime Minister Chamberlain spoke today of the "imminent peril of war" and asked for emergency powers to gird Great Britain for combat.

"The country finds itself today in imminent peril of war," Chamberlain told the House, which had been called back from vacation into emergency session.

"The international position has steadily deteriorated. New and drastic steps have been required by the gravity of the situation. The declarations of Polish statesmen have shown great calm and self-restraint. Poland has always been ready, and is ready to discuss differences with Germany if she could be sure the discussion would be carried on without threat of force and violence, and with some confidence."

In the course of his address, Chamberlain formally introduced the emergency powers defense bill, whose passage and royal signatory he demands by tonight.

LONDON, Aug. 24 — (INS) — As grave-visaged King George returned to London today and heard his people's cry: "Bring us peace, Your Majesty!" Britain strove with all her power and ingenuity for a last-minute settlement, and yet made sweeping preparations for war.

Parliament came back for an emergency session, in which Britain's cherished democratic powers are to be turned over to the Cabinet for rule by decree as during the World War.

Reserves in all the armed and civilian services were warned to be ready to call; more were summoned for active duty; the civilian populace was mobilized for defensive action, and London and other centers received the grim warning to make ready for air raid blackouts.

Anti-aircraft guns pointed skyward, the air force was tuned and manned for instant action, and the great home and reserve fleets were in the North Sea.

Some British warships were reported in the Skagerrak, between the Danish and Norwegian coasts, where they can recall vividly to German imagination the "hunger blockade" imposed by the navy during the world conflict.

German Patrol Crosses Border

Warsaw, Aug. 24—A German patrol today crossed the Polish East Prussian border, near Hawa, occupying the land east of Bagno, one kilometer inside Polish territory.

Mussolini Against Conflict

Rome, Aug. 24—Premier Mussolini has "strongly advised" Reichsfuehrer Hitler to avoid a conflict in Europe, but Italy remains convinced that Poland must negotiate with Germany to avoid disaster, it was stated on reliable authority today.

Diplomatic circles took the attitude that "lack of element for an equitable settlement" made it impossible for Italy to offer any concrete plan for peace, although this possibility was not excluded entirely.

The Argument Is Settled

(By "The Stroller")
Bristol's historian, Doron Green, "phoned me today, saying, 'I have been reading your controversy about moving pictures in Bristol. Look on page 333 of my history.' This is what we found:

"The moving picture show is still a popular diversion. The first show was started in the second story of the Bell building, Mill and Pond streets (now Dries' furniture store), about five years ago (1906) by Edward Subers, of Burlington, N. J. It attracted large crowds, but subsequently the building unsafe, and the show was closed. Another show was started in the old post office building, which stood upon the site of 'The Bristol' (206-208 Mill street). Joseph Vansant, who owned the adjoining building, erected an addition in the rear and the show was moved therein. In the meantime, a show was started in the old Colonial Theatre on Wood street, by Earl T. Stanley, which was successful from the start. Subsequently two moving picture houses were erected on Mill street."

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Johnson Miller, commander of the Knowles-Doyle Post, American Legion, of Yardley, and the four boys who made the up-State trip as guests of the Legion, its auxiliary and the Rotary Club, were present at the meeting of Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, of Morrisville.

Daniel Sines, Rocco DeRosa, Earl Wood and Francis Nolan told of their experiences while at Keystone Boys' Camp, at Indiantown Gap, Pa. The Post was favorably impressed with their report. Wood was named secretary of state and thus ranked third most popular boy at the camp, where about 1,000 attended.

Delegates Edward Mountford and William Comiskey told of their meeting with the State convention delegates at Williamsport. A resolution was presented there to try to get a pension for war veterans but it was defeated. Delegates felt that such a resolution might hurt the chances of getting the State Veterans' Hospital in the eastern part of the State, probably near Philadelphia, which now awaits the approval of President Roosevelt. Next year's convention will be held at Reading, Pa.

Nearly fifty descendants of the late Tobias C. and Jeannine Frantz on Sunday gathered in an enjoyable reunion at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Frantz, of Perkaskie, R. F. D. It was their first reunion in 33 years.

The occasion which was two-fold in purpose, took on the form of a picnic and also marked the celebration of the 71st birthday of Elvin S. Frantz, of Perkaskie. The event having been planned by his children, the Misses Clara Mae and Alice Frantz, of Perkaskie; Horace H. Frantz, of Norristown, and Walter H. Frantz, who with his wife were hosts to the jovial assemblage. During the course of the day it was pointed out that the group had not met similarly, as a family, since 1906.

Doylestown Borough Council members "steamed" through a short session with the thermometer flitting with the 90's. One of the most important bits of business transacted was the passage of a resolution assuring the State Highway Department that Council will maintain streets used on the one-way traffic change that are not State highways, and that Council will provide the proper signs and markers along the one-way routes.

This means that Council will be responsible for the maintenance of Oakland avenue between State street and Clinton street, and Clinton street properly marked by the borough. The streets and approaches will be from Oakland avenue to State street. State street, part of the one-way traffic set-up, will still be maintained by the State.

STATE TO RECEIVE BIDS FOR MORRISVILLE STREET

Trenton Avenue To Be Rebuilt from North Lafayette
Street to Canal Bridge

PROJECT IS APPROVED

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 24—Reconstruction of Trenton avenue, from North Lafayette avenue to the canal bridge, is expected to get underway early next month, according to Borough Engineer Harry H. Lee, Jr., who today stated that State Secretary of Highways I. Lamont Hughes has just sent his approval for the project.

Bids will be received by the Highway Department tomorrow and work begun immediately after awarding of the contract. The entire roadbed between North Lafayette and the bridge will be paved with concrete and drains, curbing and gutters laid.

Common Council approved the paving plans at its last session on August 8. The State Highway Department will pave the 2,140-foot area and place drains from Pennsylvania avenue to the canal at its expense. The borough will pay for drains from Burgess Pond to Pennsylvania Avenue and the curbing for the entire job, where needed. Several properties have suitable curb and gutters and will therefore not be forced to have new material put in.

The entire job is estimated to cost the borough $3,338.50, with $2,278.50 of that amount expected from residents who must put in their curbing and gutters.

The road will be 52 feet wide from Pennsylvania avenue to Crown street, 40 feet wide from Crown to the canal, and 34 feet wide from North Lafayette to Pennsylvania avenue. The State will lay 10,386 square yards of nine-foot uniform reinforced concrete and will construct 2,244 feet of drain pipe, and 14 inlets. The heavy dish gutter at Crown street and Trenton avenue will be abolished. The Trenton avenue drainage system, when constructed, will materially reduce the run-off at the Hillside avenue culvert, which has overflowed during heavy storms.

This improvement, long sought by the borough, will eliminate the hazardous trolley rails on the street, especially those on the hill between the canal bridge and Crown street, where many accidents have occurred during wet weather. Better drainage is also anticipated in all sections of the improvement.

The State Highway Department has furnished the borough with a list of markers and signs approved by the State, together with the names of firms recommended to supply the proper markers.

Descendants of Henry and Mary Clymer, held their 29th reunion on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Worthington, near Fountainville.

Because of the capricious showers the barn floor was transformed into a dining room.

After the dinner, Norman C. Kratz presided at the short business meeting. The officers were re-elected.

Births, deaths and marriages were reported by Mrs. Arthur Swartley. A prize was offered to the oldest member, Mrs. Emma Clymer, Philadelphia, 90 years of age. The guest who came the greatest distance was Joan McNair, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McNair, of near Boston, Mass.

Sandy Hook, N. J., Aug. 24—President Roosevelt landed here aboard the U. S. S. "Lang" today and motored immediately to Red Bank, where a special train sent him to Washington today to take over direction of American foreign policies.

The Presidential special pulled out of the Red Bank depot at 9.33 a. m., eastern daylight time.

Poland Ready For War

By Pierre J. Huss

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, Aug. 24—Poland today mobilized her armed forces in preparation for the first shot that will mean a new world war.

Official German dispatches described Polish war moves in the Corridor and upper Silesia were made public in Berlin coincident with announcement that Albert Foerster, Nazi leader in Danzig, had been appointed chief of the Free City.

"A Polish division has encircled Danzig," high military quarters informed INS.

"The troops have converged upon the city from the West."

"The impression has been created that trouble is imminent."

In a lengthy dispatch from the Free City, the official German news agency, D & B, said that full mobilization in the Polish Corridor was under way.

The British nationals in Gdynia were reported leaving the port aboard British ships in compliance with an order from the British ambassador in Berlin.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Smearing

now practiced in more ways and by more people than would have seemed possible a decade ago.

STARTING with the great Hoover smearing from 1929 to 1932, directed by men who, besides unusual talents for this kind of dirty work, curiously had a taste for it too, a technique has developed under the New Deal which has expanded this phase of politics to undreamed-of proportions. Today smearing has become one of the major strategies of the whole left-wing group, an indispensable part of Administration policy and its most eminent practitioners are persons, journalistically, politically or personally close to the White House, not to say in it.

THESE days every professional "liberal" is a smearer. Labor leaders, swollen with power like Mr. John Lewis and regardless of their own vulnerability, enthusiastically smear public men who refuse to be bullied and dissent from unfair labor laws and practices. But smearing as it is now practiced has gone far beyond the individual target and is applied in a wholesale way to groups and classes. The basic attitude of the modern smearer is that those who differ

WORK OF RESCUE SQUAD ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Several Publications Have Given Generous Space To Organization's Activities

WHAT ONE WRITER SAYS

The outstanding work in this community done by the Croydon Unit of Bucks County Rescue Squad, has attracted not only local interest, but nation-wide attention as well.

Sponsors of the Bucks County Rescue Squad Fund, Croydon Unit No. 1, are appealing for contributions to a fund now being raised to keep in service a public ambulance which the unit operates.

Outstanding publications have given liberal space to the activities of the Squad, and such publications as The Country Gentleman, We the People, Readers Digest, and numerous newspapers have carried extensive articles and illustrations. Many requests have been received by neighboring communities, requesting that the officers of the Croydon Unit aid in the organization of similar units in those communities.

"Stitches in Time," condensed from The Country Gentleman, by William Wolf, appeared in The Readers Digest, December, 1936, as follows:

Everyone knows what happens after an accident in a country district. Unless a doctor is at hand, the victim has to be rushed to the nearest hospital, which may be 50 miles away. Before he receives treatment, his condition is often made far worse. Fractured ribs have pierced lungs and ended lives during these long, hurried trips in the back seats of automobiles; broken bones jab through tender flesh and simple breaks become compound. Ruptured appendixes are not helped by a jolting rush over highways. The ghastly toll exacted every day by automobile accidents is due in part to the lack of efficient care immediately after the accident.

Appalled by the brutal treatment accident victims received from inexperienced persons, Robert A. Porter has made his rural section of eastern Pennsylvania a safer place in which to live. Calling for volunteers, he organized the Bucks County Rescue Squad, which in its first two years has handled over 900 cases and has become a model of what almost every country community needs. Besides two ambulances, it maintains two first-aid stations in small towns about five miles apart, and at each trained men and women are constantly on duty, ready day or night to handle anything from a motor smashup to a maternity case. The services of this unusual organization are available to anybody without cost.

More than that, Squad members patrol beaches and attend every athletic event where there are likely to be accidents or injuries. Twelve doctors are on call at the two stations in "shifts"—and if the accident victim cannot pay the physician's fee, the Squad settles it out of its own treasury.

The Squad raises money by dues from its hundred members, by card and supper parties, weekly amateur boxing shows, and an annual drive for contributions.

The Squad started with little more than an ambulance—a converted hearse—a first-aid kit, an oxygen tank and a building containing one cot.

Today a surgeon could step into the Parkland station, located in the middle of a country district, and perform a major operation. There are devices for extracting splinters from eyes, and for spraying chemicals on severe stomachs. There are two sterilizers, a stomach pump, tourniquets of all kinds, splints of every description for any sort of fracture. There is a delivery table and equipment for maternity cases—some of which are emergencies from the surrounding country and others are premature labor cases brought on by shock in motor accidents. There is even an Alpine ultraviolet lamp for the treatment of children—for the Squad now conducts a baby clinic. The Rescue Squad has purchased this equipment bit by bit, usually getting discounts because of the work it is doing.

The bigger of the two ambulances is a hospital on wheels. It has running hot and cold water, an oxygen

Have Been Revised, Effective
This Year

LANGHORNE, Aug. 24 — Opening date for the public school of Langhorne-Middletown is Wednesday, September 6th, and the close proximity of the 1939-40 term brings announcements for the year.

There have been several changes in grade assignments, so that the new high school shop and agricultural departments may have room for activities. These two departments will be housed in the two-room building on Pine street.

The first, second and third grades will report to the Friends' building. Grades four to eight, inclusive, will occupy the grade school. After enrolling on the first day, the girls of the eighth grade will have their classes in the new room in the high school building.

High school pupils will report to their respective deans for enrollment and preparation for daily schedules. The following have been appointed: Mr. Breuninger, dean of the seniors; Miss Davis, dean of the juniors; Garvin Peffer, dean of sophomores, and Mrs. James Townsend, dean of the freshmen.

Students who failed in examinations and have studied systematically under qualified instructors during the Summer, will be given re-examinations at two p. m. on the opening day.

The minimum standards for graduation have been revised by the Department of Public Instruction and will go into effect this year.

Mr. Ruble, a graduate of State College, will have charge of the agriculture department. Mr. Gale, also a graduate of State College, will teach the classes in industrial arts. Both of these courses take care of a long-felt need in providing vocational education for boys in the local schools. Every effort is being made to give these departments all the equipment necessary for the development of a well-rounded program for all boys in the upper six years.

The school board has had painting and repairs attended to. All furniture has been varnished. The grade school has been painted inside and out, the high school has an additional room finished and equipped for classes. Additional toilet facilities and a new cloak room have also been provided. Drinking fountains are being installed on the playgrounds of both schools.

GERMANY'S ULTIMATE AIM

We find it pertinent to re-examine the issue at Danzig in the light of its new developments. The familiar argument, that the fate of Danzig is not worth a World War, has in the past been answered by the assertion that the choice would not be stated in such simple terms. If Danzig were yielded, the Corridor would automatically go, and Poland would be given its death notice. Hence the move for Danzig could not be separated from the question of Poland's ultimate fate.

Three months ago, when the case was so summarized, those who thought that Danzig should be thrown as a sop to Germany were disposed to discount it as an alarmist view.

As might then have been anticipated, the controlled Nazi press has made it clear by now that the German design against Poland has no logical limit. Germany, by its own word, is after bigger game than the mere unconditional return of the Free City to the Reich.

The boldness of the German policy is equalled only by its ingenuity. Even at this stage, Germany can think the Danzig problem through to the point where the final blow is delivered to Poland's independent existence, and justify the same logic that attends the procedure at Danzig. The essence of Germany's "moral" claim to Danzig is not its Germanic population, but the fact that Germany owned the port before the World War.

Once one arbitrarily accepts the thesis, however, that all European arrangements that obtained prior to August, 1914, are somehow moral, and that all changes induced by the war are necessarily not so, Germany has the same case for proceeding to the dismemberment of Poland as for demanding the return of Danzig.

WOODCARVERS IN DEMAND

Young people who believe themselves possessed of artistic gifts will be interested to learn of possible future opportunities. At a meeting of the board of education in Grand Rapids recently, a furniture manufacturer said, "When the present generation of woodcarvers is gone, I don't know what the furniture industry will do for replacements."

It is said that the need is imminent since most of the woodcarvers are getting on in years. Recruits for this art formerly were found in Bavaria. Immigration restrictions now permit few to enter.

Manufacture of furniture is an important industry in several states. New York, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan are leaders in the amount of wooden furniture produced. Designers and woodcarvers rank high among the skilled workers in the industry.

A practical politician says the wisdom of picking a nonentity for the lower half of a presidential ticket has been amply proved. Would he say what the country needs is a good five-cent vice-president?

If a fault is common, we make a virtue of it. The ill-fated spoiled and virtuous brat grows up that way and is proud of being "hard-boiled."

Note to statesmen: Jungle beasts kill for food, but they live in peace. They do it by attending to their own business.

Work of Rescue Squad Attracts Attention

tank and complete equipment for drowning or electrical-shock cases, a first-aid cabinet, stretchers, splints and all needed supplies for emergency use.

Where do the nurses and men who perform the work come from? "From the community," Robert Porter explains. "By day the men are mechanics, clerks, electricians; at night they take their turn on duty. Some who work by night staff the stations in the daytime. They like the work, and the stations are almost like club-houses; the members gather there even when not in uniform and on duty. They all take advanced Red Cross courses."

There are two kinds of nurses and both are volunteers, receiving no pay. The practical nurses are girls and women recruited from the district and trained in first aid and practical nursing. Then there are four registered nurses on call—girls who were hospital-trained and married and settled in the community.

A registered nurse as well as a practical nurse always accompanies a patient to the hospital on an ambulance trip—such as in appendix, heart, country accident and similar cases. In motor accidents the ambulance driver, his male assistant and one practical nurse respond.

When the victim is seriously injured, the squad experts prepare him for the trip to the hospital, taking care to see that fractured limbs are handled properly and that the ride will be as comfortable as possible. If there is a skull injury, the victim is taken to one of the stations before going on to the hospital. It is dangerous to move brain cases more than is absolutely necessary.

If Mrs. Jones's boy falls from a tree and breaks his leg, or if her baby is scalded in a kitchen accident, the Squad rushes out to her farm with quick and efficient aid.

Doctors in the region were inclined at first to scoff at the Rescue Squad's plan, and the state highway patrol just disregarded it. The highway patrol was won over when one of its commanding officers watched the Squad handle a drowning case, and the physicians soon began to realize that there was no competitor, but an aid in time of need.

Some such organization is needed in almost every community where there are no paid groups to do the work. "Squads" could be started wherever there are a few men and women humane enough to want to help the injured," Mr. Porter believes. "The cost should not worry anyone. We had no money or aid of any kind at the start. Now our equipment has a value well up in four figures. Of course, we maintain it ourselves. Right now we want to get a fluoroscopic machine, and open some new stations in other parts of the county." What's more, they'll probably do it.

FIFTH WARD CLUB WINS HONORS OF SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Quindo Pitches His Team To Victory Over The Profy Ten

FINAL SCORE IS 6 TO 2

Champions Had Little Trouble
Getting To Opposing Pitcher

Behind the masterful pitching of Quindo, the Fifth Ward Sporting Club captured the championship of the Community Softball League last evening, beating out the Profy ten, 6-2, on Leedom's field. It was the second straight series win for the Warders who won Monday night's game, 5-4.

The losers played good ball in the field, registering two fast double-plays but when it came to the stick that fast ball of Quindo had too much zip for them as he struck out six batters and allowed but four hits.

The ultimate champions had little trouble in getting to Buck Profy as they opened the game with a tally in the first on a single by Pica and a two-bagger by Peterpaul.

A single by Hughes, a pass to Grimes and a hit by Jefferies tied it up for Profy but the upper league champions came back strong in the third and with Cianciosi, Pica and Peterpaul getting hits, scored three runs.

A double by Cianciosi and another hit by Pica gave the Warders another run. Profy got their final tally when Tucker and Vanzant made clean hits.

The Fifth Ward team finished their league season with seventeen triumphs and three losses.

The Community League was under the supervision of the Educational and Recreational division of the WTA and was headed by Ernest Orazi who for the second season made the circuit a success.

The second scheduled tilt of the playoff series of the Bristol Twilight League between the Rohm and Haas and Hall Aluminum lines will be played this evening at six o'clock on Landreth's field. The winner of the series will meet the Diamond team for the crown.

At the present time, Rohm and Haas is one-up on the airplane workers and a victory tonight will give them the right to meet the Andalusia boys. Manager Andy Pfaffentrath will most likely send Eddie Sullivan against the Hall team with the Hall co-managers, Bill White and Ernie Nellis depending on Ralph Strump to even the series.

The remainder of the line-ups will be unchanged. A large crowd is expected.

AL. CAREY ALLOWS VISITORS TWO HITS

Last evening at Landreth Ball Park the Farmers were victorious over the Colored Giants from Palmyra by the score of 5-1.

The game, although not exciting, was an interesting contest throughout featured by the superb pitching of Carey, who allowed the visitors but two hits, one in the first inning, a single by Young, and a double in the fifth inning by Sunket, who eventually reached third, the only visitor to get that far except Young who scored. Carey struck out nine and did not issue a base on balls. The fielding feature was a catch by Pratt in deep left field.

The Giants scored their run on

CHIP OFF BLOCK - - - By Jack Sords

Young's hit, an error on a ground ball by George Dougherty from Foulke's bat, and a wild throw by Deboski on Collins' grounder.

The "Farmers" had three earned runs. Pete Sunket, of the Bacharach Giants, an underhand ball pitcher, was on the mound for the Giants, and he only allowed the locals eight hits. He has always been hard for the "Farmers" to fathom, for when he pitched here on August 9th for the Bacharach he only allowed six hits and the same players hit him last night, with the addition of George Dougherty, who hit him safely the last time he was here.

It is probable there will be another game next Wednesday evening, which will be the last mid-week game of the year.

ISSUE CHALLENGE

A challenge is issued by the Franklin A. C. of the Lower League, to the Fifth Ward Club of the Upper League, to play a game of soft-ball. Fifth Ward, winners of the cup in the soft-ball series, has been previously challenged, according to Dominick Bomenre, but has refused to meet Franklin, which team the Fifth Warders have never played.

Tells American Tourists To Leave England

London, Aug. 24—All American tourists in Great Britain today were advised by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy to go home "immediately." "The international situation has reached a point where it is advisable that American travellers leave England," the Ambassador said. "We feel it is our duty to those Americans now in England that by remaining longer they are running the risk of inconvenience and possible danger."

The Great Game of Politics

with him, individually or collectively, are evil or ignorant or both.

THE tactics are simple. First, it is sought to instill the belief, often sincerely held, that every thought of the "liberal" is pure, that his every purpose is noble, that he alone wants to promote the general welfare and sympathizes with the downtrodden and oppressed. Second, it seems essential to assume that those who dissent from economic theories, however fantastic, or protest against actions which clash with ethical standards and a sense of decency, do so because of personal hate or greed; that they are not concerned about "human rights" or starving men and women so long as they can make profits for themselves.

AT bottom that is the real New Deal thesis, the doctrine which in one form or another, over the radio, in the White House, in the press and through the propaganda machine has been preached in this country for seven years. It is interesting that long before the New Deal was heard of, the Communist party used exactly the same sweet idea to appeal to discontent and stir up class feeling. However, smearing of the present period has gone far beyond the old-fashioned demagoguery, which is what makes it significant and important.

THERE IS, of course, nothing new about smearing. It was practiced in the dim past, but not as it now is. In former times it was the recognized weapon of the irresponsible demagogue; or of a group too small to matter; or of unscrupulous persons who felt they might acquire a nuisance value through personal attack. Today, it is no longer employed by the insignificant minority or the unimportant individual. It has become a vital part of the strategy of those in high public office, dominant in public affairs, clothed with both power and responsibility.

THAT IS the big difference. Smearing is a game these days played in high places, not low. The President of the United States has smeared businessmen, good and bad. His smearing of the newspapers has become one of his confirmed habits, joyously adopted by the radicals in the Cabinet and the pinks among the White House intimates. We have seen the Administration smear the doctors and we have seen it smear the lawyers. There have been large-scale smearing operations by Senatorial and Congressional committees and there has been a flood of smearing books, ranging from pontifical economic volumes revealing the iniquities of our alleged "ruling families" to exaggerated novels calculated to stir the emotions of uninformed and credulous people.

THE whole smearing game is now in high gear. It no longer is the weapon of the irresponsibles but of the responsible. To a large extent it seems to have become not a question of finding facts and presenting evidence against evildoers but a more or less deliberate attempt to destroy respect for the social order and faith in the American economic system by untruth, half truth and misrepresentation. Unquestionably, as practiced by people who have power and position it is one of the really dangerous developments of the time. There seems no way at the moment of checking it, and the great hope of minimizing the effect is that the people generally will see through the smearing process and grasp the essential phoney character of the smearers. It is encouraging that there are now certain signs, not in evidence a year ago, that this is by no means too much to hope.
